Following the tragic loss of her husband, thirty-two year old Audrey Douglas faces a heart wrenching decision. Should she put their memory filled New Hampshire cabin up for sale and avoid the painful memories of lost happiness—or keep it and risk resurrecting grief she has fought desperately to overcome? Either way, she must return to Loon Cove.

While en route to the cabin, a Bull moose meanders into her path and sends her SUV careening down a steep embankment. Only the efforts of astute Fish and Game Officer Ben Tanner stand between her and certain disaster.

Audrey's brush with death awakens a renewed desire to embrace life. Could her transformation be due to the emotional support she receives from her North Country friends—or just one Fish and Game officer in particular?

Regardless, love, rather than grief will guide her decision when she realizes that although she can never change the past, she can shape the future—a future that may begin, rather than end on Loon Cove.
